

New Year Around the Globe by Webcam

December 31, 2009

When the New Year arrives in Italy, almost half the population of Earth will toast to 2010 and the other half will still even for a short time in 2009. On the Internet, however, the New Year's Eve can be transformed into a party without end, or rather a celebration over a full day and do it again and again the countdown just connect to one of the many digital cameras, the eyes are always open network through sites like www.webcams.travel webcam or option on Google Maps project us in a moment the other side of the globe.

The culminating event for the interior and the New Year in New York, a crossroads of the world as the site proclaims www.earthcam.com which has prepared the live webcast from Times Square, on the page newyears.earthcam.com, where midnight big test 6 hours after Italy.

With a little 'patience, before uncorking the champagne, you can watch the fireworks in Tokyo or Beijing, to make a jump in Mumbai, the old Bombay in India, pausing in Moscow soon after, will be the turn to admire the London Eye, the Ferris Wheel of London, to Brazil to see if you can dance to the rhythms triggered, and after the countdown in Times Square there is no reason to fly to Hawaii, where virtually the 2010 will for the last time. Unless you are not one of the 800 island archipelago whose two Diomedea Islands are separated by the imaginary line of the date change and where can I celebrate 2 times in 24 hours if you have a visa to go back in time from the island more Russian than American child.
