

EarthCam to Expand Worldwide New Year's Webcast from Times Square to Red Square

December 30, 2008

Live International Celebrations Set From More Than 30 Cities Online and On Mobile Devices

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 /PRNewswire/ -- EarthCam (www.earthcam.com), the world's favorite webcam network and industry leader in webcam technology, will webcast the annual New Year's Eve Times Square celebration live from New York City.

The New Year's 2009 (<http://newyears.earthcam.com/>) event, now in its 13th year and presented by Panasonic, will feature more than 25 live camera views live from Times Square on December 31st. Cameras in additional locations throughout the world include London, Moscow and Prague, along with Las Vegas, Seattle and Chicago, among cities in the United States. Additional live and archived views of national and international celebrations are also scheduled.

EarthCam, the Official Webcam of Times Square, brings the world's largest party directly to visitors via its interactive New Year's website live in real time and without interruption. Visitors to <http://newyears.earthcam.com> will enjoy streaming video with audio and may choose from multiple webcams strategically located all around Times Square. Additional cameras in New York include views from Midtown and Columbus Circle.

EarthCam will also be present in the heart of Times Square at the information center located at 47th Street and 7th Avenue with 4 streaming video Internet postcard kiosks presented by Panasonic and a photo Internet postcard kiosk presented by Yahoo!. These kiosks allow users to digitally capture their video and pictures to email New Year's greetings to friends around the world instantly from Times Square.
