

Take Part in Times Square's New Years Celebration Via Live Webcast

December 30, 2008

For those of us who have ever ventured to New York City for their famous New Year's Eve ball drop and festivities, the experience is surely one to be remembered for a lifetime.

But for those unable to make it there in person, or who don't favor large crowd's, cold weather and limited sight distance if you're not close to 6 feet tall, EarthCam, has got the next best thing to being there in person - minus the frost bite.

The company is offering a live webcast of the New Year's Eve Times Square celebration live from New York City.

The live Webcast feeds will provide real-time video and audio with out interruption from multiple Web cam locations all around Times Square.

EarthCam.com provides live Webcams and from around the world and boasts over 200, 000 unique visitors on a daily basis. Through the company's live Webcams, its possible to view a number of locations and happenings from around the globe.

EarthCam's portal also offers users a database to search by keyword or browse through categories to see what's happening around the world 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

In addition to the Live Times Square Webcast, the company will take part in video Internet postcard Kiosks sponsored by Panasonic (News - Alert) and located at the information center at 47th Street and 7th Avenue as well as photo kiosks sponsored by Yahoo! to allow visitors to send their video and picture greetings instantly.

To capture other celebrations taking part across the world, EarthCam.com will also have cameras set up in locations including London, Moscow and Prague as well as in Las Vega, Seattle and Chicago.