

Live Cams: Watch effects of Hurricane Sandy along the coast

6:19 PM, Oct 26, 2012

Written by
Rebekah Carter

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (KTHV) - As Hurricane Sandy makes its way toward the U.S. coast, all weather forecasters are working to determine where she will end up.

Even though Arkansans are hundreds of miles away from the east coast, where "Frankenstorm" is expected to wreak havoc the week of Halloween, many eyes are still interested in the storm's path.

The EarthCam network has set up a way to see what the weather conditions are along the coast, 24 hours a day. To view live cameras from Florida to Massachusetts, visit the extreme weather page of the EarthCam network.

For the latest updates to Hurricane Sandy's track, visit theweatherchannel.com.

