If you don't know what happens during the ball-lowering, watch video highlights of the 2008/2009 celebrations on EarthCam to find out.

The time-ball was first dropped on 31 December 1907 on the One Times Square building.

It falls 77 feet during the last minute of each year, while the Toshiba's Times Square billboard beneath counts down to midnight.

Sydney welcomes the new year - and, indeed, the new decade (whatever it will be called) - sixteen hours before New York.
