

Reunion Tower Showcases Dallas with All-New EarthCam

April 17, 2015 5:11pm

Introducing Camera to Provide Live Feed of City at 470 Feet

Reunion Tower has paired up with EarthCam to deliver remarkable views of downtown Dallas beginning on April 15, 2015. Perched atop the most romantic spot in the city, EarthCam will offer the most unique views available at the icon of the Dallas skyline.

“It’s an exciting time for us to be part of EarthCam’s global network. Through this partnership, we are allowing people worldwide to view a glimpse of the lively action in Dallas,” said Dusti Groskreutz, general manager of Reunion Tower. “Especially with the expansion happening in downtown, there is plenty to view from the top!”

For locals and visitors of all ages, the iconic Reunion Tower is the one place that provides an overview of Dallas’ many points of interest with a 360-degree view. Guests start their journey to the GeO-Deck, the indoor and outdoor observation deck, where they can use the interactive touch screens known as the Halos to discover local hidden gems, historic landmarks, museums parks and more.

After exploring all the city has to offer at the GeO-Deck, guests can head up one level to enjoy the lunchtime culinary creations of celebrated chef Wolfgang Puck at Cloud Nine Café. Reunion Tower also houses Wolfgang Puck’s fine dining restaurant, Five Sixty, at the top level of the Tower.

Reunion Tower’s partnership with EarthCam, the global leader in delivering webcam content, technology and services, will not only provide live streaming video, but will also bring the city to life for viewers around the world.

“Our new webcam at the iconic Reunion Tower offers viewers a unique way to experience the beautiful city of Dallas,” said Brian Cury, CEO & Founder of EarthCam. “The bird’s-eye views are the perfect way to check current weather conditions and visit one of the great American cities.”
