

Ultra Mainstage construction live stream slowly reveals stage design

By Eric Zwilling March 20, 2015

Miami Music Week is right around the corner and Ultra Music Festival has begun the construction of its final surprise prior to the kickoff of the three day event – the Main Stage. Remaining a mystery to even the most informed electronic music fans, the stage design for Ultra never fails to impress even before the world's best DJs take it for a spin. While other stage designs remain familiar to returning Ultra fans, the yearly reveal of Ultra's most extravagant attraction is slowly happening – piece by piece. With just a week left until the festival, Ultra has officially begun to take shape.

Check out the construction live stream

