

This Temple Bar Live Stream Might Make You Want To Stay Indoors

March 17, 2015 - Aidan Coughlan

Most Dubliners know that there's much more to the city than just the old 'cultural quarter' of Temple Bar. But then, most Dubliners aren't in Temple Bar today.

After all, even though the cobbled streets can provide an absolutely unreal atmosphere, it can generally get so crowded (not to mention expensive) that it's best to veer off the beaten track – particularly on St Patrick's Day.

The sight of the tightly thronged streets is still damn impressive, though, and thanks to this livestream from Earthcam you can view the entire spectacle without having to run the gauntlet of green hats, plastic pint glasses and people singing Olé Olé Olé.

What a strange and wonderful city we live in, in fairness.

