

The Steady March of Progress

Aerial Photos Capture Latest Project Advances

November 20, 2015

As the installation of road deck panels continues into the fall and steel-blue girders extend even further out over the Hudson River, the New NY Bridge continues its steady march towards completion. Another sign of progress: the increasingly noticeable height of the main span towers, which are growing closer to their ultimate height of 419 feet.

Tappan Zee Constructors, LLC (TZC) is chronicling construction progress with both still photography and video shot from land, water and air. Those interested in a closer look are invited to view the daily progress via the project's webcams and photo gallery, as well as by visiting the New NY Bridge construction viewing platforms at Scenic Hudson RiverWalk Park in Tarrytown or at Memorial Park in Nyack.
