CHICAGO, IL - The nation's oldest ballpark just didn't look the same during the offseason months when the famous "Marquee" was missing from the exterior of Wrigley Field.

But the iconic Chicago Cubs symbol is back, and many say it looks even better than it had for the decades it stood prior to the re-installation. The sign was restored by Southwater Sign Company in Elmhurst for several months.

EarthCam has released a time lapse video of the restoration of the marquee, a landmark and staple at Wrigley Field since 1934.
