

EarthCam takes you to Dublin for St. Paddy's

Kirby Adams, @kirbylouisville 10:18 a.m. EDT March 13, 2015

Green with envy that you can't enjoy the different St. Patrick's Day traditions around the world? Hold up — you absolutely can experience the famous New York City parade and peek in on the shenanigans across the pond in an Irish pub. If you have a computer or a mobile device, you can travel just about anywhere when you click on EarthCam.

You loved it during Mardi Gras; next up, Tuesday, the free webcam website will allow you to experience:

- The St. Patrick's Day Parade in New York City with a live view of Fifth Avenue.
- Toast to the holiday with a pint of Guinness at Temple Bar in Dublin.
- Explore famous landmarks as they turn green for the Global Greening initiative.

Watch the parade in NYC and toasts in Dublin by clicking on EarthCam on your desk top. Party on the go with EarthCam's Webcams app.

A few other ways to connect with the party around the globe: Facebook: www.facebook.com/earthcaminc; Twitter: www.twitter.com/earthcam; Instagram: @EarthCamTV; YouTube: www.youtube.com/user/earthcam.

For more Buzz around Louisville, follow Kirby Adams on Twitter @kirbylouisville. Have an item you'd like to submit for The Buzz? Email kadams@courier-journal for a list of simple guidelines.

